The Circus Horse.

It was a flery circus horse That ramped and stamped and neighed, Till every creature in its course ried, frightened and dismayed. The chickens on the roadway's edge Arose and flapped their wings, And making for the sheltering hedge Flew off like crazy things.

Nor iron gates nor fences barred That mettled steed's career. galloped right across our yard And filled out all with fear; And when it tossed its head and ran Straight through the pantry door, Cook almost dropped her frying pan Upon the kitchen floor! It neighed and pranced and wheeled about And scampered off, but then We scarcely saw the creature out And only stopped to eat.

But when at dusk, a little lame,
It slowly climbed the stairs,
Behold! a gentle lady came
And made it say its prayers.
Now, what a wondrous change you see 'Sh! Come and take a peep— Here lies, as tame as tame can be, A little boy asleep!

FINDING WATER.

Astounding Feat Recently Done By Govt. Geologist.

Washington, June 4.-Only the sev enth son of a seventh son is popularly supposed to have the gift of hidden water knowledge. With his witch-hazel wand he locates wells or underground channels to a depth of 40 feet or a little more. He holds his forked switch in both hands and circles about and when he crosses above a vein of water the butt of the switch bends downward with irresistible force, thus locating, as by very magic, the spot at which he advises the digging of the

What would have been thought a century ago of a man predicting that water would be found in a certain spot at a depth of 3,000 feet? He would have seen pronounced either a consumate liar or, if he were so unfortunate as to live to see his prophecy fulfilled, he would have been deemed a fit subject for burning at the stake. Yet the fulfillment of a prediction of this sort is exactly what has occurred in an stance just made public by the United weighed 246 pounds.
